CEAR / rCITI Workshop:
Risk in Transport Systems
March 20 and 21, 2014, Sydney

General Information

The purpose of this workshop is to bring together transportation engineers working on risk, transportation economists, and experimental economists working on transportation risk. It is not meant as a large conference on every aspect of risk in transport systems, which includes choices made with respect to safety, evacuation, travel time uncertainty and institutional decisions.

Organizers

Vinayak Dixit is the organizer of this workshop, which is funded by the Center for the Economic Analysis of Risk (CEAR) at Georgia State University and Research Center for Integrated Transportation Innovation (rCITI) at the School of Civil and Environmental Engineering at UNSW. See cear.gsu.edu for more information on CEAR, and rciti.unsw.edu.au for more information on rCITI. Contact Dixit at v.dixit@unsw.edu.au about the substance of the workshop.
